Re: CG Docket No. 02-278

I am writing with regard to the FCC in order to clarify that auto dialer calls to cell phone numbers can be made if our company is recovering funds owed to our creditor clients.

My company, Professional Choice Recovery Inc., represents clients such as the University of Nebraska, BryanLGH Medical Center (560 bed) and many small rural hospitals, single dentist offices, heating and plumbing among numerous other businesses ranging from large, medium or small.

These companies rely on my staff of 21 employees to contact a lot of consumers and in a timely manner. My company uses a dialer to sort out the no answers, disconnects, and line busies. Once a consumer answers, my employee is on the line immediately to help them.

Just because a consumer has a cell phone, instead of a landline, this shouldn't prohibit us from reaching them. You are aware of the facts from American Collectors Association International. I felt you needed to know the harm this causes even one company and all our creditors in the Midwest. This affects what dollars our industry puts back into the National economy.

Please allow our industry to recover lost revenue for the many creditors we represent. Our dialers are important tools for this process.

Sincerely,

Sandy K Harvey
